

I understand you are planning to dilute existing state law by adopting a national "do not call--unless..." rule. Since you have already abrogated your right to adopt such a rule, and states such as Indiana have filled the void with their own statutes, why not let the states set their own rules?